Excerpt: . in stiff joints following Ifractures, dislocations and sprains; and is also a valuable procedure in phthisis--the apices being vibrated through the arms and shoulders. Vibration has accomplished remarkable cures of some of the most difficult and delicate cases. Having desc1ibed to you the p1incipal procedures of Medical Gymnastics and their correct scientific application, I wish to say in closing that in those three words, --c0r red scienlific ap plication, lies the key to the success of Medical Gymnastics and Osteopathy. The methods I have endeavored to describe to you, and the definitions and rules of procedure are those of the Pure Swedish system as taught in the Royal Gymnastic Central Institute, Stockholm, Sweden, and at the Posse Gymnasium in Boston. To secure rubbers is easy and inexpensive--to secure trained, scientific operators is not only difficult in this city but very expensive. In Boston, thanks to the Posse School, it is easier, though not less expensive. Having had occasion in the past few years to employ many of them and watch their work on my cases of lateral curvature, I can assure you that there is as much difference in the result obtained from the work done by the rubber, and the trained operator, as there is between the action of any old drug, and the indicated remedy. I do not consider it necessary that you should all be taught Medical Gymnastics or Massage with the idea that you will want to use it...
